The non-compliance with the allocation of tasks may however give rise to an internal liability on the part of the concerned director.

TITLE VI: Day-to-day Management

Article 24 – Day-to-day Management

The day-to-day management of the Association on both the internal and external representation level can be delegated by the Board of Directors to one or several persons. If the Board of Directors uses this possibility, these persons will act as a collegial body.

Without any legal definition of what is the “day-to-day management”; will be considered as such all operations and transactions that need to be concluded in order to assure the ordinary course of the Association’s activities that do not require or make undesirable any intervention from the Board of Directors, due to their minor importance or due to the necessity to take an immediate decision.

The Board of Directors may decide to terminate this delegation without any motivation.

The appointed person may at any time resign from its mandate. A resignation letter shall be sent (by ordinary mail or by fax) to the Board of Directors. It will however pursue the day to day management of the Association until it is replaced at the next Board's meeting.
